Current Situation

Works for Hillingvale, a secretive MOD research centre that is looking into psychic ability in people. He is involved in carrying out tests to determine if volunteers have psychic abilities.

He has signed the Official Secrets Act due to his work.

His Section Chief is Andy Gosford and he gets on well with him. Andy is practical, helpful and generally co-operative, unless he is being restrained by policies or orders from above.

The Centre boss is Superintendent George Campbell, a sour Scottish guy who is very strict and focused on results. Gerald has a reasonable professional relationship with him, but he does not like him.

Daisy has recently been spending some time with in The Third Eye, an occult and rare-book shop in Soho. She has introduced Gerald to the owner, a charismatic character called Sebastian Geistman. Gerald was initially reluctant to spend much time there, as they are annoying new age people in the main. However, he realised that it was a useful place to meet potential volunteers for his psychic research.

A new research project at the Winthorpe Institute for Dream Research, led by Dr Torrance Dandridge (an American), is being prompted through work due to it having a government research grant and Gerald has been directed to find some volunteers. He took this opportunity to recruit Sebastian Geistman and some of his friends at The Third Eye to go visit the place.
