CHILL The Horror Roleplaying Game

John Richards

John has been using computers from a very early age. He started off as an avid games player and moved into programming first to find cheats for games, then write his own games, then finally as a profession.

Does Twitch in his spare time. Playing Call of Duty on line.

Lives in a bed sit in a low income area of London. His place is very ordered though and he is very neat and tidy. He has his shirts pressed.

Strange Events

Has a blind chat website he uses on the dark web that he used to just have bizarre conversations with people on, until one day he discovered he was talking to his dead sister.

He has tried to use it to his advantage as occasionally he finds tips about the future from there.

Family

Charles and Maureen Richards are his parents. They are retired. Richard was a middle class, reserved man who lectured in Physics. Maureen was a house wife.

Father wanted him to do Physics but he didn't find that interesting. He loved computer games and ended up getting into writing stuff for himself.

Older sister (2 years) Amanda. They were close and he was devastated when she died.

Timeline

2001 (18) – Went to London Metropolitan University to study Computer Science.

2004 (21) – Graduated with a First.

2005 (22) – Started a Masters, but dropped out to go work for a computer games company.

2006 (23) – Sister Amanda dies in a car accident. Next six years are dark, hard times as he was close to her. His discovery that he could continue speaking to her on the Dark Web caused him big issues.

2007 (24) – His self-harm and destructive behaviour reached a peak. Began partying and causing trouble – very unlike him. Spent a few weeks in the psychiatric centre before being released with counselling and medication. The medication stopped him speaking to Amanda.

2008-2011 – Dark years lost to depression, medication and gaming. He began to use Twitch a lot and get some income from it.

2012 (29) – Begins to pull out of his depression.

2013 (30) – Got his first job for many years, at a large software firm doing mostly menial programming, but he found the focus of work therapeutic and he soon excelled at his job.

2014 (31) – Came off his medication. Made contact with Amanda on the Dark Web again, but initially he limited the times he spoke to her.

2015 (32) – Started working for Braxion Software, a smaller firm but somewhere he was happier.

2016 (33) –

2017 (34) –

Current Situation

Lives in a bed sit in London and works for a small software company called Braxion Software. He could probably get a better paid job in a bigger firm, but he likes that he is a big fish in this small pond and it allows him to work from home on his time table and as the work is not that pressing, he can usually catch up with it very quickly.

His boss, David Ward, treats him well and clearly knows that John is a vital asset to the company, so allows him more flexibility.

John was told by Amanda via the Dark Web that he should spend some time at The Third Eye, an occult and rare book shop in Soho, run by a charming guy called Sebastian Geistman. He decided to give it a go and used the time there to study a little more about communicating with spirits from the dead.

He also met the other party members and has volunteered to go the Winthorpe Institute for Dream Research one weekend.
